WOW what a whirlwind of a 24 hours.

Firstly I would really like to thank everyone that has supported me and helped me get to South Africa for this amazing Mr Gay World Experience. Particularlry the wonderful companies that have supported me all the way as without them I would not have had this amazing experience. To Wireless Nation my Principal Partners, thank you so much and Im looking forward to talking to you further about the whole experience when I return.

To LYC and the whole group at NZAF, thank you so much for the great promotion pre-event and the support to get here. It has been amazing and cant wait to share with you what I have learnt.

To The Tanning Room, love you Jan for everything, and to French 83, man the suits looked great last night, everyone wanted to know where they were from.

Finally, to my team-mates at Eikon, thanks so much for everything over the past few days and months, cant wait to get home and catch up.

I would also like to congratulate Klaus for his incredible well-deserved win as Mr Gay World 2015. You deserve it buddy and I'm looking forward to chatting with you tonight before we all head off tomorrow. All of the top 5 were well deserved and in fact everyone involved has made this the most incredible experience.

Im not going to write too much here, I'll save it for another time but I hope you have enjoyed my little blog across the week and I cant wait to get home and share wth experience with everyone there. xxoo

Had an amazing time at the Pink Loerie Parade today and met so many amazing people. There were some fantastic floats and over-the-top costumes cruising down the roads of Knysna.

One thing I noticed, similar to the passion and friendliness of the Auckland Pride parade was today the whole community came out to support. And they didnt just watch from the sidelines they marched side by side.

Was a truly amazing spectacle to top of what has been an incredible week here in South Africa.

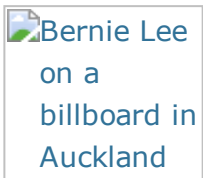

I hope you liked my costume :)..... thanks to the New Zealand All Blacks for teeing this up for me. Had a great impact on the locals who all knew about the All Blacks.
