

Germany's Klaus Burkart crowned Mr Gay World: Sunday 3 May 2015

Sunday 3 May 2015 19:56

SABC

The aim of the Mr Gay event was preceded by the annual Globeflight Pink Loerie Street Parade. (SABC)

Tags:

Germany's Klaus Burkart was crowned the new Mr Gay World at a glittering event in Knysna on Saturday night.

He beat 20 other finalists from five continents for the title of the next global ambassador of the lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender community.

The Mr Gay event was preceded by the annual Globeflight Pink Loerie Street Parade.

The aim was to highlight social discrimination such as homophobia.

Participants came out to display their taste in fashion and style, with the theme: "Pink Foot Forward".

South Africa has hosted the Mr Gay World competition twice before.

Click on the video below to watch the full package.

Share this page:

